F O R E W O R D

The accompanying compilation has been attempted as a record of some of the forebears and as a "cousin catalog" for my nieces and nephews. Each descendant of the Austin and Havens couples enumerated here may hold his head high and say, "Yes, my people helped build America."

A complete ancestry of the Austins and Havenses is not attempted; only enough is given to encourage the present generation to make further research on its own.

The material for this compilation has been collected during the last eleven years, during which time many changes in vital statistics have occurred, which are not recorded herein. (You will notice that an extra page (12a) and extra numbers have been inserted as some material came in during the actual process of mimeographing.) The compiler would appreciate prompt notification of any corrections or additions.

Thanks is given to the many who have contributed material and also to those who have given financial aid.

A U S T I N

First Generation

CHARLES GRANDISON AUSTIN, son of Amos Austin and Jerusha Callendar, was born December 3, 1808 in Berkshire County, Massachusetts and died October 19, 1891 at Cass, DuPage Co., Illinois. On September 23, 1826 he married Catharine Blakeman, daughter of Asahel Blakeman and Mary Rockefeller. She was born August 23, 1809 in Columbia County, New York and died April 30, 1900 at Downers Grove, Ill. "Chas. G. Austin lost his father in infancy. At the age of fifteen he went to Columbia Co., N. Y. where he learned the furrier and tanner's trade, also the trade of harness maker." He stayed there till 1846. In 1848 he came to DuPage County, Illinois. After settling in Downers Grove, Mr. Austin engaged in farming and in nursery and orcharding. In the fall of 1873 he sold out his interest in the nursery to A. B. Dunn & Co. Mr. Austin cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson and continued to vote with the Democratic party till the fall of 1856, when James Buchanan was nominated. Mr. Austin concluded that the party had departed from the old land-mark when the party was a progressive one. Catharine Blakeman Austin was short of stature with dark hair, blue eyes and a kindly face and manner. She came to Illinois with her husband and children by a lake boat from Buffalo to Chicago, taking three weeks. A severe storm nearly wrecked the ship. She didn't like the flat lands of Chicago, so went by canal boat to Rockport. They bought a farm and then another in DuPage County, Downers Grove Township. MLK remembers her great-grandmother as a semi-invalid, who permitted the children to visit in her private apartment where she always had potted plants a-bloom in the windows and peppermint candy in her pockets. She told thrilling Indian stories which she said had been told to her by her grandmother Rockefeller. They were the actual experiences of her grandmother before and during the Revolution--about going to the fort at night, carrying rifles to the fields, etc.

Children: (Austin) All born in Columbia County, New York.

3. ASAHEL BLAKEMAN AUSTIN was born July 1, 1832, Blue Store, Columbia County, New York and died May 9, 1905, DuPage County, Ill. On August 31, 1854, in DuPage County, Illinois, he married Susan Havens, daughter of Lauren Havens and Charlotte Ranney. She was born February 26, 1837 in DuPage County, Ill. and died January 20, 1901, Downers Grove, Ill. Mr. Austin attended school and worked with his father until thirteen years old, after which he lived with his grandfather in New York for two years. Mr. Austin settled for a short time in Cass, where in 1856 he entered into partnership with Albert Havens in the nursery business. He made one or two changes before 1869, when he began his extensive nursery business, having as partner Mr. E. A. Crittendon. They had 30 acres well stocked with a full line of fruit, ornamental and shade trees. Mr. Austin was Town Clerk two terms while at Cass; he also served in other offices. He was Sunday School superintendent for 12 years in the Universalist organization to which he and his wife belonged. He was president of the Union League for two years. He was a Democrat.

5. DEIDAMIA MARIA AUSTIN was born September 23, 1837 in the town of Tarnyac, near Hudson, New York and died May 17, 1917 at Simi, California, where she is buried. In November 1856 she married Albert H. Havens, son of Lauren G. Havens and Charlotte Ranney, and brother of Susan Havens. He was born October 8, 1825 probably near LeRoy, New York, and died January 13, 1865 at Cass, Illinois. She "was petite, vivacious, with dark hair, large deep blue eyes, and a clear pink and white complexion that stayed fresh and clear throughout her lifetime. She was very progressive, a good thinker, and had the courage to follow her convictions. She was not afraid of innovations and must have had very few inhibitions. She was left a widow in 1864 with three young children and approximately a $35,000.00 estate. She reared her own children and aided several cousins and other relatives. At a time when styles dictated black hoods and veils for 40 year-old widows, she chose a black hat with a red flower. From the middle 80's she was an earnest, sincere Christian Scientist, having had instruction from a Mrs. Moyes of Chicago. Albert Havens was the grandson of Daniel Ranney who moved from LeRoy, New York to Cass, Ill., and who had raised apples and nursery stock in LeRoy. Albert was a small boy when they moved to Illinois. Fearing he would have no apples in Illinois, he saved apple seeds for a whole year before moving. In the new home his father gave him a piece of land in which to plant his seeds. Soon he had a good seedling orchard.

When his father made a return visit to New York State, he brought back scions from the best apple trees in the old home and budded the seedling orchard in Illinois. It is my understanding that was the first budded or grafted orchard in the state. I believe, also, that that was the beginning of the Havens-Austin-Littleford nursery. The Havenses and Ranneys were well educated and thrifty people. He lectured and taught in some small college not far from Wheaton, probably at Warrenville. He was held in highest esteem by the early settlers of Cass. Albert was tall, dark, slender and fine looking. He was in partnership with A. B. Austin in 1856 in the nursery business.

Children: (Havens)

- x 14. Daniel A. , b. August 28, 1857.

6. CHARLES GRANDISON AUSTIN, Jr., was born April 25, 1839 in Columbia County, New York and died in 1918 at Simi, Calif. About 1881 he married Minnie Wheadon, who was born in Canada and died about 1909, probably at Simi. Mr. Austin served over four years in Company B, 33rd Illinois Volunteer Infantry, was at the surrender of Vicksburg, and in many skirmishes and battles. After Lee's surrender, he went into the Freedman's Bureau, and afterwards taught school in Louisiana, then engaged as clerk in the Post-office in New Orleans. In 1874 he was in the real estate business in Chicago. In the 1880's he moved to California.

On September 22, 1869 she was married at Cass, DuPage County, Illinois to Arthur Bell Dunn. He was born August 1, 1842 in Gloucestershire, England and died April 12, 1915 at Long Beach. At the age of six years, she came west with her family--traveling by water from Buffalo to Chicago and then to Lockport, Illinois, before settling on a farm at Cass, DuPage County. After attending college at Naperville, Illinois, she taught school. She was a quiet, dignified person whose life was devoted to her family. She was proud of her New England Yankee ancestry. In 1873 her husband bought the interest of Chas. G. Austin in the nursery business, in Illinois, later moving to California.

The young couple moved to Iowa, near Mount Ayr, where they lived for three years. They moved to Morrillville where they filed a homestead November 1, 1883. 39. FRANK JASON LITTLEFORD was born December 29, 1883 at Cass, DuPage County, Illinois, and died July 29, 1945 at Downers Grove, Illinois, where he had lived most of his life. He is buried at the Cass Cemetery on US 66. On August 12, 1908 he married his boyhood sweetheart, Grace Maria Ellis Huling, who was born January 26, 1886 on Belden Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, and who is living (in 1955) at 5241 Lyman Avenue, Downers Grove. Jason attended public schools at Cass and Downers Grove, living much of the time with his grandmother, Deidamia (Austin) Havens. He attended Lewis Institute in Chicago, where he ran the half mile on the track team and participated in an invitational meet at Princeton University. From there he went to the University of Illinois, and later studied landscape architecture at Lake Forest, Illinois. He became the fourth generation in the nursery business when he and John C. Alden bought equal shares from the A. B. Austin estate in 1907. Mr. Alden was a son-in-law of Mr. Austin, and sold his share in 1911 when he moved to Florida. Jason managed the growing business, which was incorporated in 1926 with Richard P. Theidel as the other major stockholder. In 1935 the business was sold to Mr. Theidel and his associates. Mr. Littleford then built up a wholesale business in Vincennes, Indiana, specializing in evergreens, magnolias, and peonies. Until 1917 the nursery was located on Elm Street at Prairie and Chicago Avenues, at which time it was moved to Highland Avenue and Ogden. This tract of land was subdivided when the nursery was again moved to Madison Street, south of Hinsdale in 1927. He was constantly trying and propagating new varieties of plant material. He was a leader in his profession and encouraged high ethics in the trade. He served two terms as president of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

Jason Littleford had a great civic consciousness and began his service to the community as a young man by serving on the Village Board of Downers Grove. Later he served as president of the PTA and member of the School Board. While on the Board, against opposition, he advocated the purchase of three times the acreage considered for a new high school site. With much effort he won his point and the present generation of students is enjoying facilities which would have been denied it without his foresight. He also served on the County Board of Supervisors and its subsidiary, the County Forest Preserve Board. Here again his ability to look ahead has served the community. At the time of purchasing acreage for a preserve near Downers Grove, others hesitated to offer Marshall Field the low price the Board could afford to pay. Mr. Littleford saw Mr. Field, had his offer accepted, and persuaded the Board to buy some unforested land adjoining. This vacant property was used for years as an athletic field and site for 4th of July celebration, being large enough for several thousand persons to gather at one time. His interest in small children led him to donate three lots to the Downers Grove Park Board for a neighborhood playground. The need for this was outgrown with the building of the Highland School nearby. The sale of these lots realized enough money to equip the playground at the Highland School, where a plaque reads "F. Jason Littleford Memorial Playground".

Grace Huling Littleford moved to Downers Grove as a small child. After graduating from the local high school, she attended Lombard

College and taught school. She has taken an active part in community activities, holding offices in the Girl Scouts, League of Women Voters and W. C. T. U. She served on the first jury in the Circuit Court in DuPage County on which women were jurors. She has been active in the First Church of Christ, Scientist of Downers Grove, being a member of the Board, Second Reader, and superintendent of the Sunday School. She is the daughter of John Beekman Huling and Mary Eliza Eberwine. Through her father she is a great-granddaughter of Alden Spooner, publisher of the Long Island Star and prominent figure of Brooklyn, New York, in the early 19th Century. He was the son of Judah Paddock Spooner who served at Bunker Hill in the Revolutionary war and was later the first publisher in the state of Vermont. Mrs. Littleford is also descended from John Huling, Revolutionary soldier, and from the Mayflower Pilgrims, John Alden, Richard Warren, Francis Cooke and William Mullins. Her grandfather, Edmund J. Huling, was assistant Paymaster on the USS Huntress on the Mississippi River during the Civil War.
